B. Sightseeing

The Huangpu River: The Huangpu River (Huangpu Jiang) is the city's shipping artery both to the East China Sea and to the mouth of the Yangzi River, which the Huangpu joins 29km (18 miles) north of downtown Shanghai. It has also become a demarcating line between two Shanghais, east and west, past and future.

Xintiandi: As a re-creation born out of the sprawls of Shikumen housing, which is the architectural symbol of Shanghai in the 20th century, Shanghai Xintiandi, “The City’s Living-Room” is a place to unwind and relax after a long day. Shanghai Xintiandi is where “yesterday meets tomorrow in Shanghai today.”

Tianzifang: It is a place in Shanghai you must not miss and it is located at Kangtai Street in Shanghai. Comparing with the brand new modern buildings, you can find the special architecture of old Shanghai city. It's such a peaceful and quiet place to live. It is also a good shopping area. The whole shopping area is not so large, but you will enjoy walking here and find out a lot of fun.

Chenghuangmiao Temple: Chenghuangmiao Temple is located south of Yuyuan Garden. It was built in the fifteenth century during the Ming Dynasty. There used to be a temple to the local deity, which the inhabitants believed would protect them in every city. Now it is a busy market, specializing in traditional arts and crafts.

Qiandao Lake: Also known as Qiandaohu, it is a giant lake with over 100 small islands. The water is very clean and is one of the first-class natural scenic spot. The lake covers 570 square kilometers. It is famous for its water that it can be drunk directly!

Huangshan Scenic Area: Huangshan Scenic Area extends about 40 km from north to south and 30 km from east to west. As an important national scenic area, Huang Shan was listed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1990 and as a result, the park is very well kept and amazingly enough in China, a non-smoking zone is strictly enforced. There are 72 peaks in total with Lotus Peak, Brightness Apex and the Celestial Capital Peak being the three major ones, all towering above 1,800m.
